26th Annual California Coastal Cleanup Day

September 25, 2010

SPONSORSHIP OPPORTUNITIES & BENEFITS

Each year, San Diego Coastkeeper (SDCK), I Love A Clean San Diego (ILACSD) and the California Coastal Commission coordinate approximately 80 coastal, inland and underwater cleanup sites throughout San Diego County as part of California Coastal Cleanup Day (CCD), an annual statewide cleanup. In 2009, 10,283 volunteers removed 174,000 pounds of trash and recyclables from San Diego's beaches, bays and inland waterways. This debris is much more than an eyesore; it represents a public health threat and contributes to the declining health of our ocean ecosystems. CCD is a major part of an International Coastal Cleanup that collected more than 6.8 million pounds of trash from 42 US states and 100 countries worldwide, making it one of the world's largest volunteer events. ILACSD and SDCK respectfully request that you consider supporting the community and the environment by becoming a sponsor of the 26^h Annual California Coastal Cleanup Day.

26th Annual California Coastal Cleanup Day September 25, 2010

ABOUT CALIFORNIA COASTAL CLEANUP DAY

What is California Coastal Cleanup Day?

California Coastal Cleanup Day (CCD) is part of the country's largest volunteer event in support of the marine environment and the largest volunteer event in San Diego County. The mission of CCD is to engage people to remove trash and debris from the world's beaches and waterways; to identify the sources of debris; and ultimately change the behaviors that cause pollution. CCD is a partnership between local non-profit groups, the community and municipalities that coordinate cleanups at the city, county and state levels. In addition, CCD is a major part of an International Coastal Cleanup, which includes 42 states and 100 countries worldwide, involving some 400,000 people. In 2009, nearly 7 million pounds of trash was collected, and 11.4 million individual items were catalogued.

Along with being the world's largest single-day volunteer event supporting our water resources, CCD is unique because of its data collection component. After years of collecting data on the specific types of marine debris being found, CCD data now focuses on the activities that cause the debris. Coordinators compile, analyze, and track this data to identify the activities and general sources of the debris. The final information is used to educate the public, businesses, industry, and government officials about the harmful effects debris has on local environments. CCD data reports have also influenced public policy on waste management, prompted legislation, and convinced individuals, organizations, and communities to examine their waste handling practices.

Why Support California Coastal Cleanup Day in San Diego County?

The San Diego coastline is one of the most magnificent in the world, yet each year tons of debris ends up on the beaches and in the ocean. CCD empowers citizens to accept responsibility for the environmental impacts occurring in their community, and to take immediate, hands-on action to remove the debris and alleviate this pollution problem. Debris that is not collected may permanently end up in the oceans where it endangers marine life and is harmful to human health.

In addition to the role that your company is playing in protecting our precious resources, CCD will also give you a chance to be promoted through prominent media coverage surrounding this event. In 2009, CCD was covered by most local television stations and many local community and countywide newspapers and radio stations.

Changing Behaviors

In addition to educating participants, CCD's message of stewardship reaches a very large and diverse audience through extensive media coverage. Tens of thousands of television viewers in San Diego are affected by the image of volunteers spending the day cleaning the beaches and waterways, and by interviews with event organizers who drive the pollution prevention message home to viewers. CCD's growing volunteer numbers each year displays the ever-expanding magnitude of the event. In order to further emphasize pollution prevention and waste reduction, coordinators have begun to distribute reusable bags at each cleanup site, encouraging volunteers to reduce their reliance on single-use bags and other single-use items such as polystyrene.

Cleaning Coastal Watersheds

In recent years, the Commission has expanded its efforts to recruit participants from inland areas to cleanup at creeks, rivers, lakes, canyons and urban areas. Inland volunteers help to illustrate one of the event's key messages – we are connected to the coast and ocean by our rivers, streams and storm drains and that the solution to ocean pollution is in preventing the pollution from getting there in the first place.

ABOUT THE EVENT ORGANIZERS

Coastal Cleanup Day is a long-standing tradition for many San Diegans, stretching back for over 20 years. Since 2002, San Diego Coastkeeper (SDCK), I Love A Clean San Diego (ILACSD), and the California Coastal Commission have partnered to coordinate more than 80 coastal, inland and underwater cleanups throughout San Diego County as part of California Coastal Cleanup Day (CCD), an annual statewide cleanup. As this partnership continues to grow, organizers are engaging more and more San Diegans in protecting and restoring the waterways that are so central to our way of life. In the last eight years, coordinators have engaged a combined 40,000 volunteers who removed more than one million pounds of trash and recyclables from San Diego's beaches, bays and inland waterways.

I Love A Clean San Diego

Through outreach, community involvement and example, I Love A Clean San Diego leads and educates our community to actively conserve and enhance the environment. As one of San Diego County's oldest and largest environmental education non-profit organizations, ILACSD promotes awareness of environmental issues including resource conservation, waste reduction, recycling, community enhancement, and pollution prevention. A diversified organization operating throughout San Diego County, ILACSD offers a broad range of expertise in environmental education and outreach, volunteer coordination, sustainable business consulting and green branding.

San Diego Coastkeeper

San Diego Coastkeeper protects the region's bays, beaches, watersheds and ocean for the people and wildlife that depend on them. We balance community outreach, education, and advocacy to promote stewardship of clean water and a healthy coastal ecosystem. Dedicated to the belief that we all have a right to clean water, Coastkeeper is the largest professional organization dedicated solely to the monitoring and protection of San Diego's coastal areas and waterways. Launched in 1995, Coastkeeper empowers San Diegans to become actively involved in protecting the natural resources in our communities through habitat restoration, marine conservation, reducing marine debris, watershed monitoring and our groundbreaking Project SWELL curricula and Environmental Law & Policy Clinic.

The California Coastal Commission

The Coastal Commission mission is to 'protect, conserve, restore, and enhance environmental and human-based resources of the California coast and ocean for environmentally sustainable and prudent use by current and future generations.' The Commission, in partnership with coastal cities and counties, plans and regulates the use of land and water in the coastal zone, including construction of buildings, divisions of land, and activities that change the intensity of use of land or public access to coastal waters. Among its many programs, the Commission is the statewide event coordinator for CCD.
